Judge tells jurors to consider five issues before reaching a verdict about fatal shooting of 29-year-old by police officer

By Koos Couvee

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

THE judge presiding over the inquest into the death of Mark Duggan has told jurors they may consider a verdict of unlawful killing as he started summing up the evidence that has been heard over the past 12 weeks.

High Court judge Keith Cutler directed the jury at the Royal Courts of Justice on Monday morning that they may come to one of three possible conclusions – that Mr Duggan was killed unlawfully, or lawfully, or reach an open verdict.

The inquest, which began on September 17, is seeking to establish the full facts surrounding Mr Duggan's death.

The fatal shooting by an armed police officer, known only as V53, of the 29-year-old in Ferry Lane, Tottenham, in August 2011, led to the riots which broke out in Tottenham days later and spread to other areas of London and across the country.

"This is not a criminal trial," said Judge Cutler, before urging jurors to look at all the evidence "coolly and calmly".

"There is no indictment, but that does not mean that this inquest is not important," he continued. "It is a public method of getting to the truth.

"By doing so, you will make sure that public fears are allayed and to bring to light any unlawful conduct, or to conclude that this has not been the case."

Judge Cutler told the jury that the standard on which they should test the evidence is on the balance of probabilities, except when considering a verdict of unlawful killing, for which jurors must be sure beyond any reasonable doubt – the standard of proof in criminal trials.

In reaching their verdicts, jurors were asked by the judge to consider five key questions.

The first was to assess whether or not the Metropolitan Police and the Serious Organised Crime Agency, which had kept Mr Duggan under surveillance in the days leading up to the shooting, had done enough to prevent the Tottenham resident obtaining a gun.

Another was to assess whether the hard stop on the minicab in which Mr Duggan, pictured, was travelling was conducted in a location and in a way that could have prevented use of lethal force.

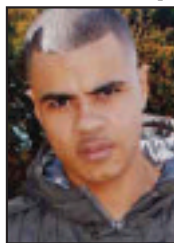

The third question the jury was asked to consider was whether or not Mr Duggan had the gun with him in the minicab immediately before police carried out the hard stop.

Fourthly, they had to consider how the gun ended up in a grassy area seven metres from where he was shot dead.

Finally, and they were instructed by Judge Cutler that they must be sure beyond reasonable doubt, jurors were asked whether or not they believed that when Mr Duggan received the fatal shot, he was holding the gun in his hand.

The inquest did not sit yesterday as one of the jurors was ill, with summing up expected to continue today.

Stay safe: Natasha Hamilton and Belt at Rokesly Infant School

Pop singer leads road safety drive

ATOMIC Kitten star Natasha Hamilton told children at a Hornsey infant school to belt up when she dropped by on Monday morning.

The 31-year-old pop singer was at Rokesly Infant School, in Rokesly Avenue, at the start of Belt Up Week.

The singer was joined by Belt, from DreamWorks film The Croods, as part of a campaign by charity Brake to encourage the youngsters to think about how to stay safe in the car and when out walking.

Natasha said: "I was hit by a car at the age of three and was very lucky to get away with a bad leg injury and dislocated ankle.

"Ever since then I've been very aware of the dangers on the roads and it's an honour to work with Brake and The Croods to help communicate these messages to children.

Tributes paid to Nelson Mandela

AFRICAN National Congress flags flew at half-mast above several buildings in the borough on Friday in memory of former South African president Nelson Mandela.

The 95-year-old anti-apartheid hero died on Thursday after a long battle with illness.

And in tribute to Mr Mandela, right, who became the first black president of South Africa in 1994, the ANC flags flew above Haringey Civic Centre, Alexandra Palace and Bruce Castle Museum.

It was also hoisted in Albert Road Rec, close to Alexandra

Park, at the memorial to Mr Mandela's close friend and anti-apartheid campaigner Oliver Tambo, who lived in Muswell Hill for more than 30 years. Mr Mandela last visited the home, on the corner of Windermere Road and Alexandra Park Road, following his release from prison in 1990 when a reception was held there in his honour.

Two injured after car hits tree

A COUPLE were rushed to Chase Farm Hospital on Friday morning after their car crashed into a tree.

The man and woman were taken to the hospital, in The Ridgeway, Enfield, after the accident in Bullsmoor Lane at around 10am. The London Ambulance Service and the London Fire Brigade were called to the scene and the Ford Fiesta car's roof was cut off.

A 24-year-old woman was treated at the scene by paramedics for back and leg pain and a 24-year-old man was treated for neck pain.

Both were taken as a priority to Chase Farm.

Marchers oppose A&E closure

By Koos Couvee

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

PROTESTERS marched to Chase Farm Hospital on Saturday in a last-ditch attempt to stop the closure of its accident and emergency unit.

A small group of demonstrators, mainly drawn from the North East London Council of Action, a coalition of trade unionists, young people and NHS staff, which was set up in 2007 to fight hospital cuts and closures, marched from the war memorial in Chase Green, Enfield, to the hospital, in The Ridgeway, Enfield.

The group has been threatening to occupy the hospital in recent months in a bid to prevent the downgrade. A hospital spokeswoman said that there had been "no trouble" over the weekend.

For campaigners, the closure of the hospital's A&E department on Monday marked the end of a seven-year struggle against the removal of emergency and maternity services at Chase Farm.

Anna Athow, a former consultant surgeon at North Middlesex University Hospital, in Edmonton, and a member of NELCA, said the changes would put patients at risk.

"There is no corresponding increase in acute inpatient beds, theatre time, nurses or doctors at Barnet and North Mid hospitals," she said. "To claim so is a lie."

An urgent care centre is now operating at Chase Farm between 9am and 9pm each day. Monty Meth, life president of the Enfield Over-50s Forum, said: "The urgent care centre should be open 24/7, with several GPs and an adequate level of nurses. We also need to get an assurance from the Secretary of State that services will remain at Chase Farm following a takeover by the Royal Free Hospital."

Enfield North MP Nick de Bois said: "This was the day so many of us fought to avoid and I am very disappointed. But people should be proud of the campaign. What we have to do now is to ensure that we get the best possible healthcare across Enfield, particularly in primary care."

Non-emergency surgery and treatment continues

PATIENTS from Enfield can still be treated at Chase Farm Hospital for non-life-threatening conditions.

The hospital will provide care for people needing to be seen urgently by a doctor for injuries including sprains and fractures.

The hospital site will continue to have X-ray and diagnostic facilities at the urgent care centre, open seven days a week from 9am to 9pm. Only 55 patients were treated there on Monday.

An out-of-hours GP service will also be available to patients referred by the 111 helpline service.

Although the paediatric inpatient ward was removed on Monday, there will be a paediatric and older persons' assessment unit on site, where GPs can refer patients for further investigations into health complaints and to co-ordinate care.

Pregnant women will still be able to have scans at the hospital site, although the labour units have been transferred to North Middlesex University Hospital and Barnet Hospital.

Outpatient and rehabilitation services will still take place at Chase Farm and elective, non-emergency, surgery will also continue there.

Kids race to take part in fitness day

FAMILIES came together to fight the flab and get into shape at the second Pop-Up Fitness event.

Babies, children, parents and grandparents attended the day of taster sessions.

It was organised on Saturday at Merryhills Primary School in Bincote Road, Enfield, by Cathy Underwood, founder of Yoga4mums, and the Enfield's Fit team.

The family fitness effort was the beginning of a campaign to target childhood obesity, a high priority in a borough where 13.7 per cent of reception-age pupils have been categorised as obese, compared to 11 per cent across London.

"We tried to make everything as family orientated as possible, trying to make sure everybody could take part," said Cathy.

"The children just loved it – they took part in everything.

"The team realised actually how important it is now to do something about the obesity problem.

"It's something we have got to address and I guess it's all to do with a lifestyle of being sat in front of the computer or TV, especially when it's cold outside."

The day also raised hundreds of pounds for Noah's Ark Children's Hospice, which supports children with life-limiting illnesses and their families in north London.

"We tried to include an element of play into the classes," said Cathy.

"With my yoga session, we did it to dubstep and garage music to show you can have fun with it.

"People said they were surprised they could do the muay thai boxing – they didn't realise what it would be like.

"We have lots of plans to do it again," she added. "We will probably do a few events during the year.

"We want to do projects with schools or maybe get involved in school fetes if PTAs are interested."

Councils clash as housing benefits cap resident is moved out

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

THE council has come under fire for rehousing vulnerable residents, who cannot pay their rent, miles away as cuts to benefits take effect.

In a letter addressed to Enfield Council leader Doug Taylor, Peter Halliday, the leader of Tendring District Council, accuses Enfield of driving a single mother to the brink of suicide after rehousing her in Essex, away from her support network.

According to the letter, once the housing benefit cap came into place in April, it became clear that the woman could no longer afford to rent her family home.

When she arrived and sought help to pay her council tax bills, she was told that Tendring had strict residency rules for people seeking assistance.

Speaking to the Advertiser, Mr Halliday said he was furious that London boroughs were pushing tenants who can no longer afford to pay their rent into "cheaper" districts that are not prepared for the sudden influx.

He said: "You can't just pass on the financial burden by sending off one of your residents," he said. "I would like Enfield to stop sending their vulnerable residents to neighbouring districts."

"If there is a need to take this course of action, surely the right thing to do is do it in a co-ordinated fashion? We need to at least be aware of who we will need to be providing for."

Mr Taylor said that the benefits cuts, which mean that families' incomes were capped at £500 – no matter how many children they have – were starting to be felt.

But that more than 1,000 families in Enfield had been helped to deal with the cuts, with 270 moving into employment and 105 claiming a disability benefit. Only 80 families had chosen so far to move out of the borough.

Mr Taylor added: "As a result of our support, the number of capped households in Enfield has reduced from 1,250 in April to 975. However, due to the drastic cut in their benefits, some people find themselves unable to live in Enfield because of the increasing costs of rent."

"The council provides information to these people about their options, which are predominantly finding cheaper accommodation, finding work, qualifying for a disability benefit or finding the additional money to pay rent from other benefits."

Concern: The letter to Doug Taylor from Tendring council

Cuts starting to bite, says charity

FAMILIES are bearing the brunt of the benefits cuts – and charities in the borough fear there is worse to come.

Mark Bellas, who sits on the management committee of the Federation of Enfield Community Associations, has revealed that attendance at the charity's housing surgeries every Friday in Mottingham Road, Edmonton, has rocketed by 32 per cent in the past year.

"We see on average 12 people every week," he said, "and we are more than happy to sit and help them apply for the discretionary relief that is available to some families in need."

He added that he has worked with three cases recently in which the families involved received a discretionary allowance which would allow them to stay in the borough. But the charity is now faced with having to help residents stave off hunger.

"We are in the process of doing 50 food hampers to take to people around the borough who are in need," he added. "It is the bedroom tax, the increase in the costs of bills – everything really."

To book a place at one of the housing surgeries, call 020 8245 3593.

Mental health wards criticised over care of patients and safety

MENTAL health bosses have been accused of showing "poor leadership" after failing to act sufficiently on criticisms by a health watchdog.

An inspection by the Care Quality Commission of three mental health wards at Chase Farm Hospital, in The Ridgeway, Enfield, revealed a need for action to be taken in four out of six "standards", including patient care and safety of premises.

The report followed a CQC inspection of the same wards in March when the trust was criticised for not protecting patients against inappropriate care. The Barnet, Enfield and Haringey Mental Health Trust, which manages the wards, was also accused of failing to keep appropriate care records – and even though the trust had made improvements to the wards, the report revealed instances of poor interaction with patients and poorly organised meal times.

Staff were heard using "inappropriate" and "infantile" language, with one referring to a patient as "good girl". On another ward, patients were unable to eat together, with many being allowed to "wander off" while waiting for meals.

The report said that while there were significant improvements in the care provided to patients in one ward, others were still failing to make the grade.

It said: "This shows poor leadership as lessons from the failings in one part of the hospital are not being robustly applied across other wards."

A trust spokesman said it was responding to the report in several ways, including reviewing meal time processes and the safety of premises.

He said: "We are pleased that in the latest report the CQC noted the improvements made as a result of previous feedback. However, it is clear there are further improvements we need to make and we have taken immediate action to address this."

"Our mental health services are under significant pressure at the moment but our staff continue to work hard to make sure that patient safety and experience are not compromised."

Drink and tobacco seized in swoop

HUNDREDS of thousands of illegal cigarettes and hundreds of litres of illicit alcohol have been destroyed after they were seized from a storage unit in Edmonton last month.

Almost 400,000 cigarettes, ten kilograms of rolling tobacco and almost 200 litres of alcohol were discovered during a raid by Enfield Council and revenue and customs officers on the unit in Argon Road.

The owner of the products had failed to pay duty on the items and the packets of tobacco did not display the legally required health warnings.

HMRC is now trying to track down the owners of the haul so they can be prosecuted.

Last year, around Christmas, the council worked with HMRC to tackle the sale of counterfeit Australian wine in the borough.

Man said he 'could not control himself' as he killed his wife

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A MAN who admits stabbing his wife to death outside their home a year ago claims he was not in control of himself at the time.

The Old Bailey heard last week that Minta Adiddo, 38, of Morris Court, Rigby Place, Enfield Island Village, who has pleaded guilty to the manslaughter of Akua Agyueman, 23, in November last year, had told his aunt in the hours following the attack that he "could not control himself" after learning his wife "brings men home" when he was not there.

Giving evidence via videolink from Toronto, Aninwah Victoria Aning told the court through an interpreter that she had received a phone call from the defendant between 7pm and 7.15pm Canadian time.

She told the court: "He seemed to be crying and when I asked why he said, 'The woman I brought from Ghana brings men home'. He said he couldn't control himself, so he stabbed her."

The court also heard from Kwame Asamoah Appau, a friend of the defendant, who had visited Adiddo in prison and revealed that he had said that on the night in question he had lost control of himself after returning home to discover a neighbour, Oladapo Etti Williams, and his wife together in the living room of their flat.

The court heard that the defendant had told Mr Appau that Mr Williams had held a gun to his head and pushed him into the second bedroom of the property before leaving the scene.

"When he came back, he ran straight to Williams," said Mr Appau. "He told me he wanted to attack Williams and that's when Williams held a gun to his head."

However, Mr Williams denied setting foot in the house on the night in question.

He told the court that his relationship with Ms Agyueman had been platonic – and after exchanging numbers when she was once locked out of her house, they had sent "flirtatious but not explicit" text messages to each other, "maybe three or four times a day".

Defence counsel Jonathan Higgs QC produced phone records that showed Mr Williams and Ms Agyueman had texted or called each other up to 80 times in one day, with a total of 650 messages between their mobiles over a four-month period.

"Some of those text messages were extremely explicit – with your telling her that you 'enjoyed having sex with her'," said Mr Higgs.

Mr Williams denied that he even knew Ms Agyueman's name and maintained they had exchanged only innocent messages. When asked where the SIM card for the phone, which would have recorded the content of the messages, was now, he was unable to answer.

Adiddo, who claims that he drove over his wife after the attack by accident, pleads not guilty to murder.

The trial continues.

Flags fly at half mast in memory of Mandela

THE flags outside Enfield Council's headquarters are flying at half mast this week to mark the death of Nelson Mandela.

The first black president of South Africa died at his Johannesburg home last Thursday evening, aged 95.

And in tribute to the Nobel Prize winner, who was imprisoned for 27 years because of his part in the fight against apartheid, the council lowered the flags to half mast outside the Civic Centre, in Silver Street, on Friday.

The practice of flying flags at half mast is seen as a symbol of national mourning.

Paying tribute to the man widely recognised as the father of South Africa's Rainbow Nation, council leader Doug Taylor said: "We are deeply saddened to hear of the death of Nelson Mandela, one of the great statesmen of the last century. Without him, unity and reconciliation would not have been achieved in South Africa."

"He showed it is possible to achieve anything by demonstrating wisdom, integrity and determination and he will be sorely missed across the world."

The flags are expected to be kept at half mast until after Mr Mandela's funeral on Sunday.

Council homes approved

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.s

ENFIELD will see the first council homes built in 30 years after plans were approved to redevelop seven small sites across the borough.

The council has announced it will start work on seven sites, including Parsonage Lane, in Enfield, Jasper Close, in Enfield Wash, and Forty Hill, in Enfield, after a planning committee meeting gave the go-ahead two weeks ago.

The scheme, which will be financed through a partnership with a chosen developer, will see 94 properties built, including 37 affordable homes, which will be fully owned by the council for shared ownership or rent. The council has secured £700,000 of Greater London Authority funding to support the works.

Derelict: The site in Forty Hill

The decision to demolish six sheltered housing blocks was taken in July 2012 and the Forty Hill site has since been added to the scheme since then.

Last month approval was granted to demolish the last remaining block in Forty Hill. The land will now be used to build a mix of one, two, three and four-bedroom homes.

Ahmet Oyken, cabinet member for housing, said: "This scheme is a good example of how councils can solve a shortage of affordable housing by using an innovative and imaginative way of getting round problems for the benefit of the wider community."

The Tories also welcomed the move. Edward Smith, shadow cabinet member for housing, said: "This is something the government enabled and funding from the Mayor of London made possible."

"I am pleased that we are finally seeing these seven sites being developed after laying unused for so long."

Work will start in Parsonage Lane and Jasper Close in April. There are four developers bidding to carry out the work and the council hopes to make a decision before Christmas.

People are expected to be able to move into the homes from autumn next year.

Spitting ban comes into force

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

SPITTING in the streets of Enfield is now officially against the law.

The by-law, which bans spitting in any of the borough's streets, came into effect on Sunday, with the result that from this week anyone who is caught hawking up by Enfield Council's anti-litter patrols will face a fine of up to £500.

The move to criminalise the habit started with the Enfield Over-50s Forum presenting the council with a petition signed by nearly 5,000 people supporting the move to stamp it out.

For two years, the council and the forum joined forces to lobby central government, campaigning for the Department for Communities and Local Government to write the by-law into statute.

And in July, after stringent criteria set by the government were met to the letter by the council, the law was set in stone, so that as of December 8 it became a criminal offence to spit in Enfield.

The council is the first local authority in the United Kingdom to introduce the powers of a by-law to criminalise spitting.

And as the offence has now been written into statute the punishment will not be a fixed penalty notice – but a statutory fine that could see offenders forced to cough up £500 or face a criminal prosecution.

Tulisa's drugs charge

AN ENFIELD man has been charged, alongside a former X Factor judge, with supplying drugs to an undercover journalist.

Michael Coombs, 35, of Velocity Way, Enfield Lock, who is also known by his rapper moniker of Mike GLC, has been accused of supplying class A drugs, while Tulisa Contostavlos, 25, of Hatfield, Hertfordshire, has been charged with being concerned in the supply of class A drugs.

The two, who were arrested in June after police received information relating to the alleged supply of class A drugs to an undercover reporter, have been bailed to appear at Westminster Magistrates' Court on December 19.

Two accused of murder

TWO teenagers have been charged with the murder of a 17-year-old in Palmers Green.

Kreshnik Etemi, 18, from Muswell Hill, was remanded in custody after appearing at Highbury Corner Magistrates' Court on Saturday accused of the murder of Joshua Folkes in Bowes Road in the early hours of Tuesday, December 3.

He appeared at the Old Bailey yesterday, along with a 17-year-old boy, who was charged with murder on Sunday. Both were remanded in custody ahead of a plea and case management hearing on December 17.

An 18-year-old was arrested on suspicion of murder yesterday morning – and at the time of going to press he remained in custody at a north London police station.

Mayor must introduce a part-time travelcard

LONDON Mayor Boris Johnson has announced his transport fares for next year.

One thing he should have introduced, but didn't, is a part-time travelcard.

There are now a record number of people working part-time and in addition many people regularly work from home.

However, part-time workers are seriously disadvantaged by the fares structure, which only offers weekly, monthly or annual travelcards that benefit full-time workers. If your job involves travelling just three days a week, the benefits from the daily cap on Oyster are nothing compared to the benefits people who work a conventional five-day week at a workplace currently receive from any of the existing travelcards.

The mayor should not be penalising people who work part-time or who are regular home workers.

A travelcard offering a good deal for three days travel a week would be a huge advantage to many people.

And by encouraging more flexible working it would also reduce pressure on our overcrowded public transport network, so benefiting everyone.

Hopefully, the mayor will show some imagination and consider an idea that would benefit so many Londoners.

A reminder of just why we rejected Ryan

Standing for election: Joan Ryan

RE: Mr MD Cox's letter, "Which party should we really trust?" (Opinion, Advertiser, December 4).

I have to say how encouraging it was to see a leaflet from former Enfield North MP Joan Ryan.

She wrote in this leaflet about how wonderful she had been as an MP, standing up for Chase Farm Hospital, how wicked the Conservatives were and how pleased she is to be "community campaigning" again – the same old mantra we had for the 13 years she was the MP.

It made me stop and think about how much things have moved on.

The man who defeated Ms Ryan in 2010, Nick de Bois, has consistently put party politics aside on Chase Farm – supporting Labour-led Enfield Council on a judicial review and slamming his own health secretary and prime minister.

I don't remember Joan Ryan ever saying she felt "utterly let down" by her own prime minister on Chase Farm – although she did speak out when she thought the unpopular Gordon Brown might threaten her chances of re-election.

As it turned out, she did that herself with her appalling behaviour on expenses. So her leaflet was a nice reminder of the politics we rejected in 2010 – and will again in 2015.

We're not in this together

THE Enfield Tories have finally come clean and agreed at a housing panel that the government's welfare reforms are simply not working.

This is evidenced by a staggering £75million loss of revenue to Enfield since the government introduced them.

This substantial loss is compounded by data obtained by council officers demonstrating that the sole beneficiaries of these reforms have been private landlords, whom since 2010, rather than lowering their rents have increased them.

Surely this was not what the Tory high command intended? Their mantra that we're in this all together seems nonsense.

A poll by Ipsos Mori shows 83 per cent of the British public feel worse off under the Tories than they did they did three years ago under Labour.

The Chancellor's recent boast in the Commons that "Britain is back on track" is therefore not to be believed.

Next year Enfield will hold local elections and residents have a chance to tell the government what they think of its policies by booting out the Tories.

Councillor Ozzie Uzoanya

Religious meaning of Christmas forgotten

ENFIELD Council perceives to describe this festive season with a sad display of oblong and spherical illuminated shapes strung along Church Street and London Road, in Enfield Town.

These non-descript shapes, for what they are worth, might allude to paper money and coinage by their mere shape. One can be tempted to visualise cash registers working overtime in the run-up to Christmas.

We pride ourselves in this country living in a multicultural and liberal society, where everyone is free to express their political, spiritual and cultural traditions without fear of offending our neighbours.

If we believe in such liberalism, then why does our local authority show such reluctance in displaying Christian symbols to celebrate a Christian festival?

This is sheer hypocrisy on the part of the council, which, in this case, seems to be saying one thing and doing another.

Christmas is a religious festival where Christians celebrate the birth of Our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

I have no doubt that the non-Christian members of our society are all too happy to partake in the festive activities and long breaks from work.

It may be that just a few conscientious people might not choose to celebrate and be prepared to go to work instead – and I respect their integrity.

Come on Enfield Council, stop the hypocrisy and live up to your liberal policies – live and let live.

Wishing you all a peaceful Christmas.

'In ruins': Broomfield House

Demolish Broomfield House

SO, we need £6.4 million to restore Broomfield House. I very much doubt if this would be enough.

Also in last week's paper, we see that campaigns are needed to prevent female genital mutilation in this borough (surely a case for cross-party co-operation if ever there was one) as well as for more funds for victim support and to prevent domestic violence – not to mention the ongoing need for help with disasters overseas.

I'm not against historic buildings, but Broomfield House has been in ruins for more than 25 years and was in any case a badly restored building with a mock tudor facade. Let's knock it down and build a cheaper, decently priced cafe and indoor space for parents and children and see what funds can be available for those other, truly desperate causes.

However, it seems that few politicians have got the guts to stand up to the various, doubtless sincere pressure groups which instantly shout about the proposed demolition of any old building.

Parking ticket left me stunned

DO the operatives of these CCTV camera cars have no discretion.

I was involved in a car accident last week in a small cul-de-sac in Edmonton.

In order not to obstruct the road, I put two of my wheels on the pavement while I waited for the other driver to write down his insurance details.

At no point did I leave my vehicle.

While waiting, I noticed a CCTV car parked at a nearby school and I know it witnessed the whole incident from start to finish.

I was horrified to receive a parking ticket in the post for "parking with two wheels on the kerb". Seriously?

I'm seven months pregnant and was quite shaken after the accident, but I composed myself quite quickly and went on my way.

I have no choice but to appeal against this decision, but my question is, how many other drivers in Enfield have been unfair victims of these CCTV operatives?

Benefit from a week on tiles

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

A NEW centre aiming to train hundreds of people as tilers and help them gain access to apprenticeships with building firms opened its doors on Monday.

Learn To Tile, a centre based at a warehouse in Bull Lane, Edmonton, is managed and funded by Joseph McConnell, who has been a self-employed tiler for 17 years, along with a number of partners.

Mr McConnell is hoping to train between 100 and 200 people a year with short, intensive courses ranging between one and four weeks at the centre, where a number of mock bathrooms and kitchens have been installed.

Mr McConnell said the tiling trade would offer a lot of people a good way to make a living.

"There are lots of tiling jobs out there, either in construction or smaller jobs with people doing up their houses," he said. "It's a route into self-employment and the money is good."

"The courses we offer are intensive and we cover all aspects of the trade, including measuring and how to price tiling projects."

Learn To Tile is finalising a deal with The Prince's Trust charity, which aims to help disadvantaged young people into employment, to fund a number of courses.

It is also looking to establish relationships with schools and colleges in the north London area.

Mr McConnell is intending to use his contacts in the construction industry to help his students gain access to apprenticeships with building firms. He added: "This is not a smash-and-grab thing. We want to help people find apprenticeships leading to long-term employment."

Edmonton MP Andy Love welcomed the opening of the centre. He said: "Tiling is a skill that people can develop and is very useful in housebuilding, DIY and home improvement and one that will be critical in bringing about the new homes that will hopefully be built in Enfield over the coming years."

Del Goddard, Enfield Council's cabinet member for business and regeneration, said: "I am confident that as the centre grows it will provide much-needed practical experience alongside other training facilities and courses in the construction industry and help deliver the major and minor schemes in the borough over the next few years."

National service for teenage clarinettist

By Koos Couvée
koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

A YOUNG clarinet virtuoso from Enfield has spoken of his delight after winning a place in the National Youth Orchestra of Great Britain.

James Gilbert, 15, of Graeme Road, has been chosen as one of the orchestra's 165 young musicians, who will rehearse and perform across the country in the coming year.

More than 750 talented youngsters auditioned for a spot. James, who is in Year 11 at Latymer School, in Haselbury Road, Edmonton – the school this year's Mercury Prize winner James Blake went to – said he was “ecstatic” when he learned about his selection.

“I was so happy,” he told the Advertiser. “I tried to get into the orchestra last year but only managed to get a reserve place, so it is great I have been successful this time round.

“I love playing in an orchestra. It involves such a great number coming together to make a huge sound. It's very powerful. I like all aspects of performing and I enjoy a great variety of music, not just classical but also jazz.”

The teenager, who was selected after auditions in front of world-class musicians, has also been a part of every National Children's Orchestra since he was ten years old.

On Saturdays, James is tutored and practises at the Guildhall Conservatoire, in central London, where he attends the junior department, and he is also a member of the Enfield Winter Quintet and the Enfield Young Symphony Orchestra.

“I would really like to be a professional musician,” he added. “My ambition after school is to either study music at university or a conservatoire, and go on to perform as a professional.”

Making music: Clarinet virtuoso James Gilbert

James' mother, Sue, said that his musical development was strongly encouraged at his primary school, Lochinver House, in Potters Bar.

She said: “James started playing the recorder when he was six and this is when he also started becoming interested in the clarinet.

“As soon as he was old enough, he showed he was determined to play the instrument and, thankfully, he has had some great teachers.”

James will be performing with the orchestra at the Barbican Hall in central London on January 5. Discounted tickets are available for young people. For more details, visit www.nyo.org.uk

Prolific armed robber jailed for eight years

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

AN armed robber, who carried out a series of raids on businesses in north and east London, has been jailed.

Glendon Percival, 56, of no fixed abode, was sentenced to eight years in prison when he appeared at Snaresbrook Crown Court on November 28 after admitting a string of robberies between February and August this year.

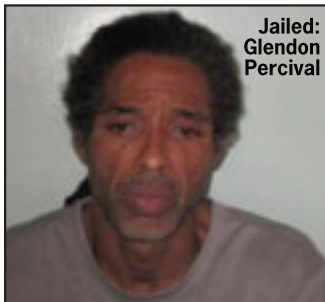

He was sentenced to eight years behind bars for five robbery offences and eight years for the possession of a firearm during each of them.

The sentences will run concurrently.

Percival went into the Cheltenham & Gloucester building society in Church Street, Enfield Town, on February 25 and handed over a handwritten note demanding cash to one of the cashiers.

When she looked up, Percival was pointing a handgun at her. He made off with around £2,225 in cash.

A few weeks later, on March 20, the 56-year-old targeted a Nationwide bank branch in Aldermans Hill, Palmers

Green, again handing over a note to the cashier and threatening her with a gun before making off with £8,000.

Two unsuccessful robberies in April and July followed, one at a Barclays bank branch in Chadwell Heath, east London, and another at a Nationwide branch in High Road, Wood Green.

Seeing Percival's gun, staff at the Barclays branch raised the alarm, while the cashier in the Wood Green Nationwide branch ran to an office at the back of the bank. On both occasions, the armed raider left without any money.

Percival was arrested while committing another armed robbery at H&T Jewellery, in Edmonton Green Shopping Centre, on August 16, after shoppers alerted police officers.

Three officers watched Percival brandishing a gun and placing jewellery and sale items into a laundry bag before running from the shop. They tackled and restrained him when he came out.

Officers from the Met's North East Branch Flying Squad, who investigate commercial armed robberies, had linked Percival to them because of the distinctive description of him and the gun he used.

Detective Inspector Holly Simon said: "The officers who detained Percival need to be recognised and commended on their bravery."

"Despite seeing and knowing that he was in possession of a firearm, they challenged and detained him in a professional and safe manner."

"This was while being in a crowded shopping area and where no harm came to members of the public."

Dog is dumped in park

A TINY dog, whose fur had fallen away in large patches from its flea-infested body, was found dumped in a blanket in a park in the early hours of Thursday.

The Yorkshire terrier cross was discovered wrapped in a pink blanket by a member of the public in Albany Park, Enfield Wash, with a broken nose, a broken jaw and a broken leg.

RSPCA officers said the dog, which they believe is about seven years old, was blind in one eye, had only one tooth left and had a skin condition that meant fur was only visible on some parts of its body.

Inspector Kate Ford said: "He is in a bad way according to the vet who is treating him. It's thought that some of his injuries, particularly the badly set leg, are old and were untreated at the time they occurred. He was in a lot of pain when he was found but thankfully he is now getting pain relief."

Anyone with information on how the dog came to be left in the park can call the RSPCA anonymously on 0300 123 8018.

Royal Mail loves delivering and sorting parcels. As we do every Christmas, our 124,000 postmen and women are working very hard to deliver the best possible service to all of our customers.

They are asking you to help Royal Mail this festive season by posting as early as possible and to use the postcode. Customers should also post by the last recommended posting dates for Christmas delivery:

- Friday 20 December for First Class items
- Wednesday 18 December for Second Class items
- Monday 23 December for Special Delivery items

If you are posting abroad by Airmail you need to get to the Post Office if your cards and parcels need to arrive before December 25.

- Friday 13 December for the USA
- Saturday 14 December for most countries in Western Europe

The Universal Service means you can post for the same price everywhere across the UK for cards and parcels. After listening to customers, we have also extended our Small Parcel sizes. This means more items can now be sent as Small Parcels.

Customers also need to pay attention to what they can and can't post. New rules agreed with the Civil Aviation Authority, Department for Transport and the Maritime and Coastguard Agency were introduced earlier this year.

The good news is that previously prohibited items like perfume, aftershaves, nail varnish and alcohol, including whisky, can now be sent in the UK with Royal Mail. Please check when you post for packaging and quantity requirements.

International parcels cannot include alcohol such as whisky and spirits. Aerosols, perfumes, aftershaves, nail varnish and loose lithium batteries are also prohibited. Beer and wine can be sent but quantity and packaging restrictions apply. Everything must be sent through a Post Office branch.

Customers can get full information on what they can and cannot send via the Royal Mail website at www.royalmail.com, calling customer services on 08457 740 740 or check at Post Office branches.

A CLASS of budding readers will star in a hit ITV children's show this week – after their teacher won a competition to feature in the series.

Des Hegarty, 39, and his class at Wilbury Primary School will appear in Bookaboo, a Bafta-winning show featuring a rock'n'roll puppy who encourages kids to read every day.

The episode, which has already been filmed at the school, in Wilbury Way, Upper Edmonton, features Mr Hegarty reading Pigeon Poo, by Elizabeth Baguley and Mark Chambers.

"I feel excited and proud that I am able to represent Wilbury in such a positive way and very proud for the children because I understand how important it is for them too," said Mr Hegarty.

"The children were nothing but courteous and receptive the whole way through shooting.

"I was reading to them as I would on any other day, but I think the impact about them being on TV is just about starting to emerge.

"Storytelling is about the development of the imagination and the vocabulary and it is a very important stage in their learning to be read too," he added.

The competition, launched in May this year, asked teachers from across the UK to read aloud from their favourite book and submit a video of their performance.

The show aims to bring each book

On TV: Teacher Des Hegarty

to life through animations, comedy sketches and songs and 1,000 books are donated to disadvantaged children in each episode.

Previous celebrity readers have included singers Melanie C and Meat Loaf and comedian Al Murray.

The Wilbury episode will be aired at 7.25am on Saturday on ITV and CITV and repeated on Friday, December 20, at 10.50am on CITV.

Michael Lavender

Enfield Conservative group leader

It makes sense to spend less on welfare and use money for infrastructure

LAST week two of our MPs, David Burrowes and Nick de Bois, spearheaded the local Help Our High Streets campaign by visiting our high streets. This followed London Mayor Boris Johnson's visit the week before.

Support for our high streets is something I, as leader of the Conservative group on Enfield Council, supported following the publication of the Portas review, which made recommendations to central government.

It is important that campaigns result in action. So what is being done?

Centrally, the government is introducing a cap on the increase in business rates in England to two per cent in 2014/15; it is introducing a £1,000 business rates discount to help businesses in the high street; it is doubling the small business rate relief for a further 12 months from April 1, 2014, to help 540,000 firms; and it is making it cheaper for businesses to employ young people by abolishing National Insurance contributions for under-21s earning below £813 per week.

Furthermore, a national infrastructure plan involving more than £375 billion of planned public and private sector infrastructure investment has been announced. This is funded partly by the sale of some capital assets, such as Eurostar, to fund new capital assets.

This is part of the government's initiative to spend less on welfare and more on infrastructure. That expenditure will create employment – and once the Stratford train enhancement to Angel Road and the proposed enhanced Cross-Rail initiative to Cheshunt have been implemented, it will regenerate places including eastern Enfield and Upper Edmonton.

In addition to this physical investment, the government has earmarked £400,000 to support local businesses in Enfield to obtain fast broadband access. Any small or medium enterprise may apply for a voucher and applications may be made to Enfield Council, the Greater London Authority or via the government's website at www.gov.uk for this purpose.

Environment matters

Cross-party co-operation means any decisions will be in our best interests

ON Monday, I attended a groundbreaking meeting. As far as I'm aware, for the first time in my 30 years as an Enfield resident, a political party has opened up its election manifesto process to public consultation.

Enfield Labour organised it and I'm pleased to say that other political parties were also represented. I will convey a few ideas from the evening, but perhaps you would like to write to me care of this newspaper regarding environmental issues you would like considered?

The topic was regenerating Enfield's economy and my attention was focused on ways of doing this through environmental enterprise.

Readers already know our council is promoting energy efficiency, cycling, safe driving and clean air and water as part of its overall priority of a clean, green and sustainable environment.

I was interested when a Green Party member asked at the meeting whether the many new houses being built locally, specifically at Meridian Water, in Edmonton, would be built to conform to the highest standards of energy efficiency, eg using passive solar heating.

I applaud the question and am even happier to see the sympathetic reception she got from Doug Taylor, the Labour leader of Enfield Council.

It is great to see cross-party co-operation like this, ensuring any decisions made locally will emphasise the long-term, and not quick, political fixes – such as we saw in Westminster last week.

It was disappointing to compare the positive attitude of Enfield's political leadership with the coalition government's cynical plan to slash the Energy Company Obligation, crucial to the fight against fuel poverty.

It's essential that our politicians think of the big picture rather than political expediency. Anything else is a betrayal of their duty to us, future generations and the environment.

'You will be surprised by the standard of concert'

By James Brilliant

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

A SPECIAL guest will be joining the Asaph Ensemble for its annual Christmas concert at Bush Hill Park United Reformed Church on Saturday

Salvation Army Staff Band principal cornet player Paul Sharman will be performing as part of an exciting programme, which includes trumpet concertos, Christmas arias and carols.

Mr Sharman trained at the Royal College of Music and has had a number of works published as well as performing in London's West End.

Last month he toured Brazil with the Regent Hall Band and he has also performed with the Staff Band at the Army's Christmas celebrations at the Royal Albert Hall.

Ensemble director David Hooke said: "I've known Paul for quite some time – he plays in an orchestra that I conduct.

"He has played with the ensemble before and he is great player. From our point of view, this is brilliant."

Mr Sharman will join the rest of the ensemble comprising of trumpeter Mr Hooke, sopranos Sandra Graham and Nicola Hooke and organist Robert Evans.

"To have a group of musicians of that kind of standing, coming to quite a small

Concert date: Nicola and David Hooke are part of the ensemble local church, is definitely a coup for the community," added Mr Hooke, 53.

"People should come along and give it a try – I think they will be surprised by the standard and variety of the music." The concert starts at 7.30pm, and tickets are available on the door, priced at £6 for adults and £4 for under-16s.

FAMILY ANNOUNCEMENTS

On duty: Rifleman Henry Taylor served in north Africa and Italy during World War II

By James Brilliant

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

THE unknown heroics of a World War II rifleman have been revealed in a new book, the royalties from which will be donated to The Rifles' Care For Casualties charity.

A Battle Too Far, by Carol McEntee-Taylor, recalls the experiences of Enfield's Henry Taylor, of the 7th Battalion The Rifle Brigade, and is based on his diaries and on recollections from his son Lawrence. Mr Taylor was a member of the 8th Army during the Second Battle of El Alamein in 1942.

The book moves on to Italy, where Mr Taylor took part in the Allied invasion.

Carol describes how Mr Taylor and his colleagues, often fighting in desperate conditions, have been forgotten by history, their efforts overshadowed by the D-Day landings.

"They were even supposedly

New book remembers rifleman Taylor and his wartime heroics

called the 'D-Day Dodgers', even though they often faced conditions akin to those in the trenches in WWI," said the author.

"We are now reaching a time when all those who fought for us will have gone and there will no longer be any one who remembers. Therefore, it is vital we collect these memories, so we never forget their sacrifice.

"We owe our freedom, our way of life, to those men who were prepared to put themselves on the line for us," she added.

Lawrence Taylor, of Bycullah Avenue, Enfield, said: "The Italian campaign was one of the bloodiest of the war, the Allied forces attacking against strong German defences based on the numerous rivers and mountains. Although A Battle Too Far is about my father's experiences, it is also in recognition of the men of my father's battalion and of the soldiers who fought in the Italian campaign."

After the end of the war, Mr Taylor served in Austria and Egypt.

The book is available online from Pen and Sword books, at £15.99.

Civic pride as Honda teases mighty Type-R

By Matt Joy

THAT 2015 is not a slip of the keyboard. The Honda Civic Type-R 2015 really is a car that won't be going on sale for more than 12 months. But that's how important the Type-R is.

Previous generations of the Civic Type-R garnered the devotion money can't buy and for a while it appeared there would be no new Type-R.

But now there is and that's why Honda allowed a brief taste of it just before the Tokyo Motor Show. Even though it won't appear in showrooms until 2015, this car is so important we're getting to drive a prototype version very close to the finished article.

You won't mistake it for a regular Civic, that's for sure. Admittedly, this example is finished in military-looking matte paint and has "VTEC TURBO" emblazoned down the flanks in a pleasingly 1980s' retro touch.

But it's a fantastically aggressive-looking thing, with big scoops, subtle wheel arch extensions and a rear wing that would suit its BTCC cousin.

It looks like a serious piece of hardware and, given there are plenty of other options for a quieter life, it's a good thing the Type-R looks the part. It's the same on the inside, too.

Although it can't be taken as entirely representative of the finished product, the chunky bucket seats are exactly what you'd expect, while the familiar Civic dashboard has the addition of a centrally-mounted rev counter and a thicker steering wheel – purposeful, comfortable and highly appealing.

There's one other addition, too. Where the Eco button normally sits high up on the dash, there is, instead, the distinctive "R". Punch this button and R mode is engaged, which alters the throttle and steering response and the damper settings as well as the reactions of the ESP system.

Before all that, however, you have to start it up. To some, the news that the Civic Type-R will use a two-litre turbocharged engine rather than a naturally-aspirated one will be a surprise, but in truth it is inevitable.

Efficient turbocharged engines are everywhere – even Formula 1 cars from next year, as Honda knows – so to provide Type-R levels of performance without abandoning respectable economy and emissions, turbo is the only way to go.

More importantly, Honda is introducing a trio of turbocharged engines for different cars in the range, but the Type-R gets the most powerful. The engineers are coy, but say the Type-R will have at least 280 horsepower.

It feels like that, too. Slot the manual-only gearshift into first, pull away with intent and the performance is right there from low revs.

There's a roar from the exhaust, the throttle response is nice and sharp and there's power right around the rev range.

Instead of the expected Type-R high-rev mania, there is a broad spread of torque – and while that might not sound as exciting, the reality is it feels fast everywhere.

Despite all that power going through the front wheels, the traction is excellent and there's no fight through the steering wheel.

The steering felt delightfully sharp and responsive with a nice firm feeling to it. That little bit of extra weight compared to the standard car encourages confidence.

That there is still 18 months to go before the Type-R arrives is probably the best news of all. If this car was launched tomorrow, it would be in a real battle with the established hot hatch champions – but with so much development time still to go, it looks very much like the king is back.

CONDITIONS OF ACCEPTANCE FOR ALL ADVERTISEMENTS

Orders are accepted by the Publishers subject to the Standard Conditions agreed between the Newspaper Society and the Institute of Practitioners in Advertising. Save that:

1. Advertisements are accepted on the conditions that (a) descriptions relating to goods are accurate and in no way contravene the provisions of the Trade Descriptions Act 1968, and the Fair Trading Act 1973, and (b) the copy complies with the British Code of Advertising Practice. Advertisements offering credit or hire facilities must conform to the Consumer Credit (Advertisements) Regulations 1980.

2. 'Classified' Advertisers offering goods or service of a business, commercial or trade nature will, at the discretion of the Publishers, be deemed 'Trade Advertisers', and as such, must include their names in advertisements. A telephone number is an optional addition to these requirements and not an alternative.

To comply with the Business Advertisements (Disclosure) Order 1977, Trade Advertisers must make it clear that they are selling goods in the course of business either by content, format, size or place of the advertisement or by including words such as 'trade', 'dealer', 'agent', 'wholesaler', '(T)' etc. in the advertisement.

3. The Publishers accept no liability whatsoever for any loss or damage however caused arising out of:

(a) Any error, inaccuracy or omission in the printing or publishing of any advertisement;

(b) Any failure to publish an advertisement on the day / date or day / dates specified by the advertiser; or

(c) Any delay in forwarding or omission to forward replies to box numbers to the Advertiser.

4. The Publishers will endeavour to publish advertisements on the day / date or day / dates specified by the Advertiser but insertion days / dates cannot be guaranteed.

5. Where shrinkage of advertisement occurs for whatever reasons the advertisement will be charged to the nearest full centimetre. This will NOT apply to the full-page advertisements, which remain full pages even after shrinkage.

6. The Publishers reserve the right to reject an advertisement or to vary it in any way they deem fit, at any time before publication, whether or not the advertisement has already been accepted for publication.

7. Whilst every effort is made to minimise errors in advertisements, mistakes do sometimes occur. Advertisers or their agents should therefore check their advertisements and inform us of any errors immediately. Responsibility cannot be accepted for more than one incorrect insertion. Typographical or minor changes, which do not affect the value of the advertisement, do not qualify for republication or allowances.

8. All gross advertising rates (except classified lineage and semi-display) are subject to and include a 0.1% Advertising Standards Board of Finance surcharge, payable by the advertisers to help finance the self-regulatory control system administered by the Advertising Standards Authority.

9. All rates quoted are subject to VAT at the rate currently in force at the time the advertisement appears.

10. Should the rate for advertisements be altered the price for remaining insertions shall be revised accordingly or the publishers shall have the right to cancel the unexpired portion of the order.

11. The placing of an advertisement order will be deemed an acceptance of these conditions.

12. Account facilities are granted at the discretion of the Company.

13. All accounts must be settled within the terms agreed by the Company and the Customer.

(1) Should an advertiser be in breach of the agreed terms, the publisher shall be entitled to levy a 10% surcharge on the value of the whole debt in respect of accounts with terms of less than 30 days, and any discounts or commissions that had been allowed will be reclaimed.

(2) Regular monthly accounts that are in breach of the agreed terms will pay an interest rate of 6% above the current bank of England base rate for each month that the account is overdue and discounts or commissions that had been allowed will be reclaimed. Should Legal action be required the interest will be charged in accordance with the County Court Act 1984.

14. Where an advertiser instructs / appoints an advertising agent to act on their behalf, the advertiser will remain jointly and severally liable for payment in respect for an advertisement(s) should the appointed agent fail to pay. For the avoidance of doubt, the agent acts for the advertiser and not for the publisher with the agent being responsible for notifying the advertiser of this liability.

15. All queries must be notified, preferably in writing to the accounts department of the publisher within 7 days of the invoice date.

16. All digital services are maintained in partnership with the publishers' hosting service providers. Every effort is made to ensure the continuity of these services, but some occasional technical downtime beyond the publishers control may occur. The publisher and its associated companies shall be under no liability if the production and distribution of web services is delayed or prevented by any cause beyond the control of the publisher.

17. The Publisher may provide voucher copies for published advertisements in electronic form only subject to certain criteria. Further information is available on request.

18. The copyright of advertisements produced wholly or partially by the Publishers belong to the Publishers. Advertisers may not reproduce such advertisements without the Publishers' consent.

ARSENAL CUP TIE EXCITES DAWSON

By Dominique Stafford

sport.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

TOTTENHAM HOTSPUR skipper Michael Dawson insists that he is relishing the prospect of facing fierce rivals Arsenal in the FA Cup next month.

The draw for the third round of the competition was made on Sunday, and the stand-out tie is undoubtedly Spurs' trip to the Emirates Stadium to face the current Premier League leaders – and Dawson is eagerly anticipating the high-profile showdown.

"It's a special game and a massive draw so early in the competition," he said. "We lost there earlier in the season and that was obviously a huge disappointment. I thought we played well that day.

"The FA Cup is different and this is certainly the tie of the round. We know all about Arsenal and what this game means to everyone. We'll go there looking for a positive result."

Meanwhile, head coach Andre Villas-Boas has hailed his players after they got their league campaign back on track by recording successive wins in the past week.

Tottenham ended their poor run of results by beating Fulham 2-1 last Wednesday, and followed this up by securing victory by an identical scoreline at Sunderland on Saturday to lift them up to sixth in the table.

Both wins came after Spurs had conceded the opening goal, and Villas-Boas expressed his delight at the way in which his side had bounced back from last month's humbling 6-0 defeat at Manchester City.

"The match at Sunderland was a great win for the players," he said. "They were absolutely outstanding. It's them that work hard on the pitch and sweat for us. They achieved a great, great win.

"It could have been one of those situations again where we rued our missed chances, but it wasn't and I think the only winner could have been Tottenham. We got in so many great scoring positions that we could have slotted in, but we had to fight to achieve the win.

Up for the cup: Michael Dawson is looking forward to taking on Arsenal at the Emirates Stadium

"I think the result is entirely deserved and it puts us back on track near the top, where we want to be, and with a great spirit after the result suffered against Manchester City.

"We've already got seven points in December from two away fixtures and Manchester United at home.

"It's been a very important week for us. We came back from a very difficult situation – not only from the scoreline, but also from the league position. We have fought back without any help. It was important for us to put ourselves back on track."

Borough's FA Vase bid comes to an end

HARINGEY BOROUGH were unable to hold on to a two-goal lead as their interest in the FA Vase came to an end with a 3-2 defeat at home to Brantham Athletic on Saturday.

The hosts took the lead from their first attack of note on seven minutes as Anthony McDonald guided a header into the roof of the net from a difficult angle at the far post.

But Borough did not really threaten again prior to the interval and they needed two acrobatic saves from keeper Ashley Harris to maintain their advantage.

However, the hosts did score again against the run of play in the second period when Michael Deane met a deep diagonal ball in from the left with a glancing header into the corner of the net. Cedric Lakole squandered a golden opportunity to make the game safe five minutes later when he had a penalty saved by Brantham keeper Ryan Bedingfield, and this seemed to give the visitors renewed hope as Jack Sibbons pulled a goal back within two minutes – bundling the ball over the line from a corner.

The equaliser arrived in the 80th minute as Ben Deacon netted with a free header from six yards out to take the tie into extra time.

Brantham continued to hold the initiative in the extra 30 minutes and it came as little surprise when they scored what proved to be the winner midway through the opening period as Deacon latched on to a low ball across the box and drilled into the net from ten yards.

Haringey Borough go to FC Romania in the Essex Senior League on Saturday (3pm).

Trio sign new deals with the Skolars

THE London Skolars have re-signed three key players as they continue to build their squad for the 2014 rugby league season.

John Paxton, Rob Thomas and Sam Wellings have all put pen to paper on new deals as the Skolars look to once again challenge for promotion from the Kingstone Press Championship One, having missed out in the play-offs last time around.

Long-serving Paxton won the coach's player of the year award at the end of last season after making a total of 25 appearances and helping the team by playing in a number of positions.

Thomas made 20 appearances in 2013, scoring 28 points including a memorable 19-minute hat-trick against Oxford in May.

Having previously played for Championship

One rivals South Wales Scorpions, Wellings joined the club at the end of May and made his debut in the 52-25 victory at Gateshead in June. He went on to make 14 appearances, cementing a place in the starting line-up and playing consistently well.

"While we have lost one or two players for 2014 it was very important that we kept the nucleus of the team," said head coach Joe Mbu. "In retaining John, Rob and Sam the club have secured the services of three vital players, all of whom contributed significantly last season.

"With Dave Williams already signed up the squad is shaping up nicely for the challenge ahead."

The Skolars will begin their league campaign with a trip to Oxford on March 2.

IT'S PANTO TIME! TICKETS SELLING FAST

Join Dick Whittington and his friends this Christmas for a whole host of laughter, singing, dancing, audience participation, glamour and glitz.

London's streets of gold are calling and, with his faithful acrobatic cat by his side, our hero Dick goes searching for his fortune in our big city. But he won't make it without your help. Be there to cheer Dick on along his journey, 'boo' at the biggest baddie of all time - King Rat - and 'ahh' at the object of Dick's affections, the beautiful Alice. This is a rags to riches tale that will make your Christmas even more special.

Ring 020 8807 6680 or visit www.millfieldtheatre.co.uk to get your prime 'hissing' and 'booing' spots secured! Don't forget you can save even more if you book your seats online.
